BlueWare to Offer PaperIQ Digital Pen

Cadillac, MI— June 9, 2009— BlueWare officially announces their partnership and OEM agreement with DevelopIQ for its award winning PaperIQ Digital Pen & Paper technology, which has been proven in some of the largest digital pen deployments to date, including a recent UK public sector contract to provide 4,600 digital pens.

The PaperIQ partnership will enable BlueWare to build in digital pen support for document update as a standard offering for Wellness Connection Clinical Document Management System. Digital Pen will allow for instantaneous capture of written data into the digital health record.

“Digital Pen will revolutionize the capture of clinical data, without interrupting workflow process at point-of-care. It is a win-win situation for healthcare providers. Our customers are thrilled with the technology”, Rose Harr, CEO and President of BlueWare.

Digital Pen connects handwritten paper forms and documents to the organization’s healthcare record systems providing a low cost and secure solution for data capture. Digital Pen has many uses throughout the provider setting, including nurse charting, clinician notes, forms completion and patient signature at point of registration. For nursing staff working out in the community, the Digital Pen can be paired with a mobile phone to enable hand written patient forms to be sent securely to the patient’s record system over the Internet.

Commenting on this new partnership, Robert Bakewell, Commercial Director of DevelopIQ, “Digital Pens are now a proven technology in healthcare for the completion of patient forms. They are easy to use and simple and cost effective to implement. What makes us so excited about this ground breaking partnership with BlueWare is that it takes the technology to an even more compelling level allowing healthcare staff to select and print any patient document, update it with handwritten notes using their Digital Pen and then save the updated document back to the system for immediate access by other staff caring for the patient.”
